

OLD IRELAND, A LONG FAREWELL

*I found this plaintive air in "The Dorsey and McCall Collection of Traditional Irish Music."
There is an old Irish song that runs "Long life to you, a child every year, and death in Ireland."
Emigration was a bitter pill to the Irish, and this tune captures the feelings that many must have felt as they stood on the deck of a ship and saw the shore receding in the distance.*

Traditional Irish
Arranged by Glenn Wilson

$\text{♩} = 98 \text{ m.}$

1

2

3

4